

Redington Extends Strategic Alliance with Huawei into Cloud to Accelerate UAE's Digital Growth

Dubai, United Arab Emirates – 15th September 2025 – Redington, a leading technology aggregator and innovation powerhouse across emerging markets, today announced a strategic partnership with Huawei Cloud, a division of Huawei, a leading global cloud service provider. This collaboration will bring advanced cloud technologies and services closer to enterprises, government entities, and SMEs in the UAE, empowering them to accelerate their digital transformation journeys.

As organizations increase their investments in cloud-first strategies and AI adoption, the partnership between Redington and Huawei Cloud will play a vital role in bridging global innovation with local market needs. The collaboration will focus on delivering scalable, secure, and cost-effective cloud solutions while enabling partners with the right skills, training, and go-to-market support.

Dharshana Kosgalage, Executive Vice President, Software Solutions Group, Middle East, Redington Group, said, “At Redington, we see cloud adoption as central to digital transformation. Our collaboration with Huawei Cloud adds strength to our multi-cloud ecosystem and reflects our commitment to unlocking the next phase of growth for partners and customers.”

Barry Xu, Vice President of Ecosystem & Partner Development, Huawei Cloud Middle East & Central Asia, Huawei Cloud Middle East & Africa, said, “This partnership reflects our focus on driving innovation and accelerating intelligent transformation in the Middle East. With Huawei Cloud’s secure, reliable, and AI-native infrastructure, along with our commitment to data privacy, we are empowering organisations of every size to modernise their operations and grow sustainably. Our vision is to support enterprises and governments in harnessing the full potential of cloud and AI, building the foundations for a more connected and dynamic region.”

The latest agreement builds on Redington and Huawei’s longstanding partnership, now with access to Huawei Cloud’s suite of services, including AI, big data, storage, and security, making them available to enterprises of all sizes. Redington will work closely with its partner ecosystem and help them with training, certification, and go-to-market support to accelerate adoption. Together, Redington and Huawei Cloud will help customers modernize IT infrastructure, reduce costs, and drive business agility with next-generation cloud solutions.

This partnership is in line with Redington’s Unlock Next vision – empowering organizations with the technologies, skills, and collaborations required to thrive in a digital-first world.
